With the participation of:

Michele Ratti

Duration of video: 11 minutes 20 seconds

Category: documentary film.

Subject:

The life of Michele Ratti who, having been born and raised in Milan, subsequently decided to leave the city. After various incidents, which eventually led him to Nepal, he returned to Italy, where he became a shepherd, finally establishing himself in the Alpe Margosio.

The starting point of this film is the idea of migration, meant as a physical movement and as a derive coming from a cultural model.

The themes that are tackled are those of life in the city and in the mountain; of the rapport with ones own parents and ones own children; and of some significant meanings which can be attributed to ones own life and to the idea of freedom.
